

2008 Boeing Chicago Game Changer Award Nomination Form

Overview

The Boeing Game Changer Award was created to support new community leaders (or those new to their current positions) in the Chicagoland area whose hard work and vision help the organizations they lead find new ways to support underserved communities. These “game changers” breathe new life into our communities, unite diverse groups to work to bring about lasting systemic changes, and foster what is best in all of us. They see our problems in new ways, take risks, and, as a result, develop new solutions.

Award Terms

The annual award consists of a $100,000 grant to the organization the community leader represents to fund organization development or a diversity-related project. The nominee must be in a mentoring relationship with an up-and-coming leader of color in his/her organization.

Categories

The award will rotate among individuals representing one of the five areas in which Boeing makes charitable grants—education, arts and culture, civic, environment, or health and human services (Note: health and human services is not eligible in 2008).

Eligibility

- Must serve in one of Boeing’s five focus areas (see “Categories” above).
- Must be new to the organization or new in current position (less than three years).
- Must specifically serve diverse and underserved communities or is a new leader initiating a new diversity program/undertaking.
- Must have a proven track record and demonstrate leadership attributes.
- Nominee and/or organization must demonstrate effective business and financial controls; promote integrity; show commitment to and take advantage of diversity; and create an environment of respect and inclusion.
