

VALSTREAM

Award: Supply Chain Visibility

Enabling real-time visibility across the supply chain in support of Boeing's digital thread strategy.

Q: What does it mean to be recognized as a Supplier of the Year?

A: This is a landmark moment in the history of ValStream, our proudest achievement to date and one that we feel honored to receive and determined to continue to live every day.

Q: How did your company get started?

A: Paul Stevens was one of the founders of Airinmar Ltd, and after selling that to AAR Corp, recognized the open space where technology and expertise could deliver a game-changing benefit to the repair management and procurement space in aviation. He met David Stevens and together they crafted the organization's Reason To Be.

Q: What should people know about your company?

A: ValStream has been built on a unique blend of Repair Management, Data & IT experts and dedicated itself to solving one specific solution. We have always prided ourselves on challenging accepted norms and solving intricate problems, previously felt to be unsolvable. The result has been a market-first data-digitization and analysis tool supported by experts that changes the way data is gathered and utilized in the aftermarket.

Q: What is your company vision/mission?

A: To save as much money as possible in our client's repair management business.

Q: How do you inspire your employees?

A: We openly discuss our Reason To Be and share successes across the breadth and depth of the organization, actively discussing how their everyday work contributes to this. We are all connected.

Q: What's an interesting fact about your company?

A: We have successfully launched our Female-Focused Developer program, aimed at providing our female staff with the opportunity to experience, train and be funded to gain qualifications in various forms of software development, regardless of prior experience. This supports diversity in an under-represented group in this sector and creates opportunity for team members to develop in new ways that they had not previously felt available to them.
